I'm commenting in support of Adi Liberman, whom I've worked with over the past several months on a proposal exploring how urban waterway bridges can be transformed into small public spaces.

Adi has been incredibly responsive and generous with his time. He helped me develop the proposal, connected me with the Valley Village Neighborhood Council, provided valuable guidance on the Safe, Clean Water Program, and walked me through the process of obtaining a letter of non-objection from the City of Los Angeles.

As the founder of a small landscape architecture practice, I've found it rare to encounter people like Adi who are willing to engage with small firms, listen to new ideas, and help with navigating opportunities to contribute to public work.

I'm grateful for his guidance and strongly support the renewal of his contract.

Sincerely,

We contacted Adi to get his guidance and advice with a project concept which we had in mind. He was incredibly helpful and generous with his time and helped us to get started in the ongoing and complex process. From the tentative beginnings to the successful Technical Resources Proposal process, Ari was a great resource and source of good advice.

When our proposal was up for a vote, we believe Ari's participation in the deliberations helped make the case as to why our proposal should be approved. As we move into the new year and are planning a community outreach event, Ari has been helpful in helping us conceive of an event with strong content that will appeal to our community.

For these reasons, we really appreciate Adi's support and urge you to renew his contract as Watershed Coordinator so that he might bring the next project to success.
